MISTER McCARTHY.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—A morning paper to-day publishes the unenviable rec rd of the man McCarthy, with whom Miss Laura Sickles is said to have eloped. He is no other than the dashing individual who, under the name of Col. W. C. McCarthy, used to be seen about the streets of Chica o. and attained notoriety by his brigandish dress, his mashing airs and his perfect sea of trouble with unsuperciative creditors.

It will be of interest to the present Mrs. McCarthy—if there be such a pers n—to know that she is not the first person upon whom the Colonel has bestowed his name, In November, 1875, he married the widow of a certain doctor of Chicago, who had committed snicide, owing to domestic troubles. What became of this Mrs. Mc-Carriby deponent saith not.

The Colonel's greates notability here grew out of his swindling mining operations. He was connected with the American Bureau of Miners, Bastrop Coal Company, Wicait Copper Company, and other swindling concerns, his favorite copes being moneyed Britishers. In the spring, 1877, McCarthy was arrested in New York
